SAYINGS OF LINCOLN.

Prosperity is the fruit of labor.

Let none falter who thinks he is right.

Come what will, I will keep my faith with friend and foe.

That some should be rich shows that others may become rich.

All that I am, all that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother.

Whoever much fears or much hopes will be alike disappointed.

I believe in the providence of men—the largest purse and the longest cannon.

Nowhere in the world is presented a Government of so much liberty and equality.

To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible.

Few can be induced to labor exclusively for posterity, and none will do it enthusiastically.

I have always plucked a thistle and planted a flower when I thought a flower would grow.

If you aim too high, your idea will go over the heads of the masses, and only hit those who need no hitting.

If we could first know where we are, and whither we are tending, we could better judge what to do, and how to do it.

Let us have faith that Right makes Might; and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.

The mystic cords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature.
